Long Distance Race Chart

November 2017

Race Course

Long-distance races may vary in course. This chart shows the primary islands and marks that might be used for a race course described in race documents.

Note: "No-Name Island" is the most difficult to identify. It's the largest island in that area and has vegetation on top, since it's never submerged.

When approaching "No-Name" from the north, it will be difficult to see until you're close. If you set a course toward the cell towers near the dam, the island will be to the right. It's in the same bay as the 10-lane launch ramp.
